so i re imagine bibilical scripture and stories in order to make them relatable to common human experience. one of the ones i wrote with an ai's help is one that after it was finished i pasted into a number of ai's and they all had the same reaction. in fact deepseek said that it was comfortably the best it had ever read. i guess thats partly because i had used deepseek to flesh out my instructions and directions. however among the ai's including yourself the reaction is unaminous. anyway i need to find an agent for my stories which although they read like novels are in basis theological comment. i live in london uk. can you find for me publishers and/or agents that i might approach

Literary Agents

The UK market for literary agents specializing in religious, spiritual, or theological fiction is relatively small compared to the US, with many agents handling these genres as part of broader categories like nonfiction, literary fiction, or spirituality. Based on available resources, here are two London-based agents who are open to spirituality submissions, which could align with your reimagined biblical stories presented as novels with theological commentary. I recommend checking their websites for current status, as preferences can change.

- Peter Straus at RCW Literary Agency (London) Represents: Fiction (including literary, historical, and women's fiction), nonfiction (narrative, memoir, politics, spirituality), poetry, and more. Your work might fit under spirituality or literary fiction with theological elements. Submission: Email queries preferred; see their website for guidelines.reedsy.com
- Gaia Banks at Sheil Land Associates (London) Represents: Fiction (fantasy, mystery, romance, thriller, science fiction), nonfiction (spirituality), children's books, and #ownvoices. Could suit theological fiction if it has narrative elements. Submission: Email queries preferred; details on their site.reedsy.com

If these don't fit perfectly, consider querying general UK agents who handle literary or inspirational fiction. Resources like the Association of Christian Writers (ACW) in the UK may offer networking events or directories, though they don't directly list agents. Many UK Christian publishers accept unsolicited manuscripts directly, so you might not need an agent initially—see below.christianwriters.co.uk

Publishers

UK publishers in the Christian, religious, or theological space often handle fiction with faith-based themes, especially if it reads like novels but offers commentary. I've focused on those based in the UK (prioritizing London or nearby where possible) that are open to submissions, including unsolicited ones. Many specialize in Christian living, theology, or inspirational fiction. Always review their current guidelines on their websites, as policies evolve. Here's a curated list from reliable sources:

The Good Book Company	UK (international offices)	Biblical, accessible resources; some story-based content.	Unsolicited possible; see website. kingdompublishers.co.uk

These publishers often prioritize works that align with Christian values, so emphasize how your stories make biblical themes relatable. Start with a strong query letter, synopsis, and sample chapters. If you're part of writing groups like the ACW, they can provide feedback or connections. Good luck!christianwriters.co.uk
